

WHAT ELSE TO SEE...

Alyth Cemeteries

Part of the Family History Project is to map, record and photograph every headstone in both cemeteries. The Arches (see overleaf) has been completed, and the main cemetery is underway. If you have basic photography and computing skills, and would like to help with this task, contact Irene Robertson through Alyth Parish Church.

War Memorials

There are two war memorials in Alyth. One as you enter Alyth from the south adjacent to the Muirs (common grazing) commemorating both World Wars, the other adjacent the Market Square in the centre of town commemorating the Boer War. Further memorials can be found in Alyth Parish Church on the lectern, and in the foyer next to the 8th century Pictish Stone.

ALYTH

FAMILY HISTORY PROJECT

Launched in 2009, the Alyth Family History Project is the beginning of something big...

An archive of digital photos to browse through, recorded maps of the cemeteries' headstones, free Internet access for genealogy research, memorabilia from Alyth through the decades. The Parish Church, Library and Museum have it all. Come and see. It's FREE!

THE PARISH CHURCH

What to see...

The historic Kirk has a computer database of auld Alyth photos. Browse through hundreds of photos relating to people, buildings, events, views. From as recent as twenty years ago, to the late 19th century, the database will be updated regularly with photos copied from local people. Come and find old school photos, or perhaps one of your granny...

Opening hours...

Saturdays 10-12
Sundays 2-4

Donate a copy of your photos...

We scan original photos to add to the database, see overleaf for contact details.

THE LIBRARY

What to see...

The local library can offer FREE Internet access to search genealogy websites. The librarian is on hand to assist family history searches.

Opening hours...
